For a Timeless and Deep Connection, by Shantalla

Video vs. Audio

While there are many benefits to telling your story via the medium of video, there are some real advantages to committing it solely to audio.

- The sound of your voice alone, will instantly
 - connect and deeply impact.
- Your voice alone gives a much deeper window into
 - who you are & what you are about.

Pictures or videos only capture moments. A voice captures an entire life. It is palpable in its timbre, its emotions and its resonance. It is timeless. When you hear a voice, you are not constrained to a fixed point in time. You are allowed to browse through all the pages of the story at once.

A hologram is a 3-dimensional picture. Yet the human voice is a natural hologram. If a person's story is properly crafted and told, you'll hear them entirely, from all angles, and across time.

Paul Finnegan
Founder/CEO
Shantalla

Here is what some of Paul's interview guests have to say about the experience of recording their stories with him.

...the best active listening I have ever experienced - all of which lead to a detailed and authentic story being told...

-Helen O'Shea

...his easy and effortless charm makes Paul a distinct pleasure to work with...

-Claire McGovern

Paul has a unique talent to weave together disparate events, recollections, and thoughts into a compelling and cohesive narrative. That's the mark of a great storyteller.

-Sean Benson

The questions and conversation were both natural and fluid and I quickly forgot about the presence of a microphone. He has the ability to make conversation flow with ease...

-Amy Brett

Paul has a way of celebrating the ordinary in all of us. That ability is a real skill.

-Bridget Skeados

Paul gave me a precious gift, a capsule, I can share with...the world. He possesses a rare talent for making space for others to feel heard and understood.

-Eamon Harkin
